Forest Fires.

MECHANICSBURG (Pa.), May 12 .-Disastrous forest fires have swept over the mountain lands of this country since last Monday and are still raging; fully 10,000 acres of valuable timber lands were burned over. The valuaderwood, near Dillsburg, was destroyed; losses by fires already exceed $150,000. WHITE CLOUD (Mich.), May 12 .-The upper township of this county has been a surging sea of fire since Sunday, and it is believed not a single one of the small hamlets are left. A number of freight cars and logging LUDINGTON (Mich.), May 12.-Some people who lived in Walkerville before the fire struck that town arrived here in a deplorable state. They say it is impossible to tell how many inhabitants escaped alive but they fear many died in the woods where they fled for safety. The village had about 800 inhabitants, and no one knows where more than half of this number is at present. Rumors of a large loss of life at other points are coming, but verification is impossible. This entire country will be swept unless rain comes to-day.

President in Colorado. By Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, May 12.-At a a reception given to President Harrison last night at the Antlers Hotel in this city, a portion of the porch thronged with people gave way, precipitating about thirty men and women into the rear below. A scene of great confusion ensued. All were soon rescued and no one was found to be dangerously injured.

DENVER, May 12.—Immense crowd gathered at the Union depot and when President Harrison and party arrived at 9:15 this morning, they were given a warm welcome. The party was escorted between twodines of military to their carriages. The procession then formed and the march through the principal streets was begun. The party halted at the Metropolis Hotel, where an elaborate banquet was served. After the banquet speeches were made by prominent men present and responded to by President Har-

Portuguese Panie.

Lisbon, May 12.-The Lusitane Bank is the only financial institution taking full advantage of the decree issued yesterday by the government granting a delay of sixty days in the payment of obligations. The Bank of Portugal temporarily refuses to cash notes. It is rumored the government will soon issue a fresh decree authorizing the issuing of forced paper currency. The announcement now made of the suspension of payment of all obligations for sixty days does not apply to state transactions.

In the midst of the alarm caused here by the financial panic, a sensation was caused to-day by an exploble torture. Three men fired on will sion, supposed to be the work of the Republican party, which took place in the Ministry of the Interior. Local authorities are keeping the facts so equipped with a stereoscope present far as possible, from the general public, but it is known the explosion was of the projectors who were recently considerable damage. There is no clue to the actual perpetrators of this outrage, which, owing to the state of the public mind, is being considerably magnified in importance.

The Tariff.

In the course of his speech at the banquet of the American Protective Tariff League, the Hon. Wm. McKinley said:

"As showing the condition of agriculture under the revenue tariff policy prior to 1824, I beg to read you an extract from a speech made by Thomas Ewing, a Senator from Ohio, in 1832, in defense of the system of protection:"

"In short, every portion of the world was searched by our intelligent merchants, and all combined did not furnish a market adequate to our surplus productions. Every farmer in Ohio long knew and felt the pressure consequent on this state of things. Year after year their stacks of wheat stood unthreshed, scarcely worth the manual labor of separating the grain from the straw. So low was it reduced in comparison with manufactured articles that I have known forty bushels of wheat given for a pair of boots. Such was the state of things in the western country prior to and at the time of the revision of the tariff of 1824."

"This indicates the condition of the farmer under the low-tariff period prior to 1824, and makes clear the motive and action of the agricultural States in favoring the protective tariff of that year. Forty bushels of wheat for a pair of boots under the revenue tariff policy now advocated by the Democratic party in the so-called interest of the farmers. Forty bushels of wheat to-day after thirty years of protection and seven months after the passage of the tariff of 1890 will buy not a pair of boots alone, but an entire suit of clothes and hat in addition, and with overalls and rubber boots. The home market created by increased manufactories encor.raged by a protective tariff has changed the condition of the agriculturist of the profit.

"The system has given to the farmers of this country, whether they grow cotton or corp, wheat anywhere offered, has given to our people a diversity of employments, to our labor better wages, than can be found anywhere else. It has accorded to genius, skill and invention, encouragement, and to the whole country a marvelous development in all that goes to make a nation rich and strong, progressive and prosperous.

"To-day, aside from the men who labor in shop or mine, no class of ested in the maintenance of a protective system as the farmers. They sell 92 per cent. of all their products at home, and every mile of transportation saved is money made. There is no portion of our people except labor which would be so seriously affected in income and profits from the policy of free trade as the farmers of the United | Prussia a century ago. States. The recent census shows the remarkable growth of agriculture in the last ten years under protection. In one department of the progress made is almost phenomenal. Upward of $100,000,000 are invested in this industry, the annual products reaching a value paying freights and commissions, realized upon 584,440 acres of land. ufacturing centers."

Reno Evening Gazette DEER HUNTING IN THE ANDES South American Indians Seize Any Advantage Over Them They Can.

The manner in which the South Amer ican Indians hunt deer in the Cordilleras is very interesting and somewhat ngenious, says the Detroit Free Press. They first ascertain the locality in which the animals congregate to graze, and then the men, women, and old children of the tribe make extensive preparations to hem in the herd. In order to cause a stampede they blow horns, yell, and make other bewildering and outlandish noises. As a natural consequence the frightened deer quit . 25 their grazing places. They form in line in regular marching order, the elder May 12, 1891 males leading the way, followed by the females and young, while the rear of the column is brought up by the young bucks, who act as protectors to the centers.

The Indians now close in on them, seeing which the animals prepare to do battle for their lives. The hunters then proceed to prepare the instruments of destruction, consisting of large lances, resinous torches, and nooses fixed to

The worst enemy of the deer is the jaguar and wildcat, and their animosity to them is such that they have been known to leap over a hunter in order to attack either of these feline foes. The Indians knowing this, employ it to great advantage during these hunts. The women stuff a number of jaguar and cat skins, which are placed in prominent positions on the edge of precipices, in full view of the deer. Immediately the bucks make a violent effort to get at them, in order to hurl them into the abyss beneath, but are thus treated themselves by the wily hunters, who push them over the cliffs, where they are quickly hamstrung or otherwise disabled by the women, who are stationed below. After the first on-slaught on the stuffed figures the remaining deer seem to recognize the fact that they have been tricked and hud-dle together, awaiting another attack.

Then the Indians throw lighted corches among them and a panic ensues. They make desperate efforts to escape. but the relentless hunters drive them over the crags until they see that a sufficient number have been captured-ally four or five hundred. They do t usually harm the females and fawns and also allow a few bucks to escape. Very seldom is a doe killed, and if a lawn is captured it is immediately liberated. The flesh is eaten by the Inlians and also carried to the village to be sold, while the skins are either purchased by dealers or made up into various articles by those who assisted in their capture.

MENNONITES OF RUSSIA. The Hardships of a Christian Sect Under the Czar's Government.

The Mennonites of Russia, as well as Hebrews, are complaining of the severities of the czar's government, and, but for the obstacles to their emigration, the whole body of them would probably come to this country. They are a Christian sect over three centuries old, and hold a baptismal doctrine not recognized by the orthodox Greek church, into which the government has tried to drive them.

The Russian Mennonites, who numcountry to their advantage and ber only about 60,000, took up their habitation in southern Russia, near the sea of Azov, about a century ago, explains the New York Sun, having then left Prussia on account of the hardships to which they were subjected. They or wool, the best domestic market | are a peaceful, intelligent, virtuous and industrious people and they have enjoyed rare prosperity in that region.

The main trouble of the government to our industries a wider range, with them grows out of their religious principle of non-resistance and their resal to render military service. For long period of time they were exempt from service by the decrees of the czars, but this privilege was withdrawn twenty years ago. They then obtained permission to leave Russia within a specified time.

In 1873 they began to take advantage of it, and several thousand of them found refuge in this country. The first colonies went as farmers to Kansas and our citizens are so deeply inter-ested in the maintenance of a protheir determination modified his decree of conscription, and gave orders that, in time of war, they should be required only to render service in the military hospitals. The granting of this privilege and the expiration of the period during which they were allowed to emigrate stopped the mennonite movement to America. The whole body of them was desirous of leaving Russia, as they left

Now again they are suffering hard-ships through the operation of the conscription law and through the czar's determination to bring them into the ortho dox fold. If permission could be obtained agriculture, that of truck farming, by them to leave Russia they would folhere eighteen years ago.

HOW STATES GROW.

The Fallacy that Nevada Cannot be Built Up Disproved.

Markets always made by farmers

Mines Are Very Valuable, but We Need Not Wait Forever if They Fail.

The following letter which was published in the New York Tribune is commended to those who argue that Nevada cannot support a population unless it has a lot of miners standing waiting to buy what is produced on the farms.

The natural order of occupancy in a new country is, first, the wild beast and savage hunter; second, wander-ing bands of cattle, almost as fierce as the original beasts of the forest, often more valuable for their hides and horns than for any other commer-cial purpose; third, the shepherd with his flocks, who inaugurates the owner-ship of land in small degree; then fol-lows the farmer who makes a permanent home and lays the foundations of the State. He furnishes the necessaries upon which all other classes subsist, and any increase in his num bers lead to a corresponding growth in the population, wealth and importance in the community. The next change comes with fruit growing and change comes with fruit growing and gardening and all the higher uses to which land can be put. It goes hand in hand with city building, manufacturing and the highest development our race has reached. This is said to be the history of the human race as a whole, and the Chinese are pointed to as a recole who never anioved the to as a people who never enjoyed the contemplative period of

THE SHEPHERD AGE Sol necessary to perfect the mind of man. They are an instance of arrested development, having gone from the hunter to the farmer. The several stages which took up thousands of years of time in the history of the race have been covered up by a specific product of the stages where the stages where the stages have been covered up by a specific product of the stages have been covered up by a specific product of the stages are stages as a series of the st race have been covered up by a span Western America, and the man who has grown up there has lived who has grown up there has heed through, in his own short life-time, the changes extending from the days of Abraham to those of Edison. He has seen a large and diversified coun-try grow from complete barbarism (where it is not absolutely empty) to a good degree of development in the a good degree of development in the highest civilization the world has ever known, and if he has any mind at all he must have been deeply impressed with the lessons in political and do-mestic economy taking shape before

The first stage has disappeared from North America almost entirely, al-though attempts have been made to perpetuate it by giving reservations, sufficiently large, to savage tribes of Indians to preserve their game from being killed or scared away. But the laws of nature are stronger than the demands of the Indian Bureau, and converted brother is feeling the force of our red brother is feeling the force of the westernism, "root hog or die."

The second feature has been very common west of the Missouri river until a recent period, but it is now being crowded by other stages of de-velopment. The range system for raising beef cattle has enjoyed seasons of great prosperity. As long as the seasons remained fairly mild, fortunes would be built up and no other industry seemed to have a show to live, unless it was mining. But it has been found that the weather could barbarous practice to turn cattle loose in the hills and let them take their own chance for life or death. From of starving bands of moffensive ani-mals, of a class to which man owes so much their constant crying and bel-lowing for food, their lying down for days too weak to rise and dying by inches, would kill any business. It has been entirely and there is not a man in the State who now attempts to raise cattle without putting up hay to feed them during severe storms.

the Great Basin and millions of sheep are feeding over the country between the Sierras and the plains. The difthe Sierras and the plains. The dif-ference to the trading portion of the community is very marked. Where cattle cost but a few cents per head a vear each, sheep is worth at least a dollar per annum to the country that supports it. Men are required to be in constant attendance day and night and other men must carry their proand other men must carry their provisions, move their camp when one place is fed out, etc. Twice a year the sheep are sheared, dipped and doctored, and every week they are given salt, and all the money these things cost are spent at the nearest villege so that a transition for village, so that a transition from a cattle to a sheep country is a decided Commercially. Some of the stock-men are combining the two and find that they can hold their feed better by that trey can hold their feed better by keeping sheep on the outskirts of their ranges and marking out a barren belt between them and their neighbors. Ten sheep will feed off the ground required for one cow, and the former can be driven to a feeding place when them set in when the other could storms set in when the other could not be found. The loss is therefore less, and even if they die, 25 per cent of their value is saved by taking off

The natural order which should have prevailed has been disturbed in our section of the country by the discovery of mines, and the excitement which followed the rush of the Argonauts brought people to the coast who had no idea of ever making their homes there. No one at first imagined that the arid lands of the West would support a population by their cultivation and education which has convinced them has been a very slow one. The which followed the rush of the Argonauts brought people to the coast who had noidea of ever making their homes there. No one at first imagined that the arid lands of the West would support a population by their cultivation and education which has convinced them has been a very slow one. The conflicting forces have been even stronger in Nevada than they were in California, and Nevada stands to-day divided among all the different stages of State development. She has large Indian reservations and mountain tracts where the wild deer has been known to mix with the herd and all were corraled together. She has stretches of unowned land which is grazed by sheep that are tended night and day by watchful shepherds. She has a struggling contingent cultivating the soil and she has examples of the highest development in mining machinery, in agricultural implements, in electricity lighting, and in other respects has the whole scale of development from the highest to the lowest represented within her borders. In many respects

many respects

THE REGULAR ORDER Would have been much better for Nevada and perhaps for the world. If her lands had been settled up with people and towns been built before her mines were discovered the processes of mining would have been different and in-stead of being owned by a set of men whose jonly desire was to get rich and run away, the money would have gone into permanent property in the State. But where the idea of making a home never entered the mind, the only study was to invent and perfect the machinery which would extract the metal the quickest. The result has been a great improvement in mining machinery, which has torn the earth to pieces as it never was before and has in a few years given over half a billion dollars in gold and silver to the world. If the production of this amount had been spread over two hundred years instead of twenty-five, putting a few million of dollars into the channels of trade each year through the medium of wages paid for etc., it would have combined with farming, fruit growing, stock raising, gardening, manufacturing, etc., to make Nevada one of the most popular and populous States in the Union. But the bonanzas lay in a desert with its other wealth concealed, offering no neighbors but the murderous red man and no inducements to make a permanent settlement that the excited gold hunters could see or understand. California was near by and the wealth so easily won was carried away or gambled off to those who invested it in other States.

However the miners day was broken into long ago by the cattle man and now although all classes are the best of friends, the farmer begins to assert himself and there are to-day more people who expect to live and die here than there ever were before. The farmers day is the good day for a coun-try in a long run and the change will

A LASTING ADVANTAGE

To all classes. The State will not be less a mining State, but more, when we have both agriculture and manufactures. Heretofore Nevada has been like the toper who took a drink of grog instead of a beefsteak when he felt himself in need of support. Most of her people, when times were dull, instead of going to work to build up to the state. It can be truthfully said instead of going to work to build up to the state whatever, that with our productive whatever, that with our productive some farming section or developing some permaneut industry, would begin to inquire for a boom in stocks and wonder where it would strike and how they could get in. Even now after abundant experi-ment has been shown that our soil and climate are well adapted to the support of a much greate, population, our citizens do not see how it can be made self-supporting. The question is immediately asked, when any one proposes a close settlement of the State, what a man could do with his crop after he had raised it. The outside markets are far away and freights are high. Even the mines in our own State can import produce from a long distance at as cheap a rate as they can from districts near by and the prospect for an export trade seems hope-less. The same arguments would have applied with equal force to Illinois and Indiana to California and every other country that has become civilized. Observation has convinced me that the new comers in a country are the men that get rich, while the later arrivals are found speculating on what they would be worth if they could have been there in the early days very cold winters at intervals suffi-ciently regular to destroy all hopes of permanent profit. It was at best a barbarous practice to turn cattle loose is no use of trying to raise crops unless there is some one waiting to buy the standpoint of the humanitarian them," we would be still living in alone it deserved to fail. The sight caves and eating our rabbit raw. But experience shows that a certain number of settlers can support a blacksmith shop, and as they add to their numbers they can afford a doctor and a shoemaker; still growing larger they induce a store to come in and after while a preacher and a lawyer, all finding ample encouragement in the natural wants of the people around them. It would be exactly the same in Nevada, and if its population were doubled it would have no difficulty in in retaining the services of three and perhaps four times as large a class of dependents as it now has, in the way of professional men, manufacturers, cap-and other men must carry their pro-visions, move their camp when one Diversified industries insure the greatest prosperity, and in a country like this where the precious metals are found everywhere in more or less richness, the laboring classes would find an outlet for their surplus energies that is afforded in no other locality. that is afforded in no other locality. With a large population devoted to agriculture and manufacturing there would be a reserve to draw labor from which could provide the means for working hundreds of bodies of ores which now lie undeveloped. When the labor of the farm was suspended the labor of the farm was suspended in winter or the factory was tied up for some reason the hills would offer an inviting field and men could spend a few weeks or months in pling ore on the dump which would much more ### than pay expenses, and if it did not pay $4 a day in wages it would be far better than living idle in the towns. It is to stimulate THIS LAST AND NOBLEST CONDITION OF

A Letter from an Eminent Physician. MR. EDITOR: At the risk of indorsing & proprietary preparation, I have a few words in favor of a new laxative principle. But first, how I came to discover it. A patient asked about taking Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. As sarsaparillas usually contain mercury or iodides I objected, and asked for the formula, which finding purely vegetable and so mild as to be to my mind almos fuert, I consented. Imagine my astonishment when perfect laxative action was reported. It has two great points. First, being cumulative in the system, being easily car send $1500 00 a month to Utah for the one item of eggs. The towns of Elko and Tuscarora import between $7000 and $8000 monthly of provisions and spend $40,000 a year in Utah and California for flour. Other towns are doing the same, Virginia City and the State Capital leading the procession. Not less than a half a million dollars with the procession are imported. rled off by the digestive processes; and se it is effective with a less quantity of the cathartic principle than has hithered been attainable. It in this respect ranks as a discovery, and approaches the ideal, via.: the least medicine consistent with the greatest good. It harmonizes natural laxative action and perfect safety, and should interest both the public and the profession.

STONED TO DEATH.

pary Justice Meted Out in the Rib-al Manner in Afgha "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." The dictum of the old law still holds good in Afghanistan, says the Sheffield Telegraph. In fact, the manners, customs and surroundings of the Afghans of to-day might be prototyped in the pages of the old testa-ment as faithfully as the life of the Israelites. The Afghans are Mohamme dans, it is true, but their religion is built on old law lines and their social life is as simple and patriarchal as when the great lawgiver Moses ruled the destinies of the people of Israel.

For in Afghanistan of to-day oxen tread out the corn and plow the fields; and the plow itself is a counterpart of the Mosaical instrument. Corn is ground in hand-mills and a goatskin serves as a "water-bottle." Household and farming utensils have changed nothing during the centuries that have elapsed since the Israelites tramped the desert by the Red sea. In short, you could find a series of "tableaux vivants" in the surroundings of Afghanistan of to-day to fill up chapter by chapter the scenes depicted in the old testament. is said that the Afghans are one of the lost tribes, and certainly so far as a dogged adherence to Israelitish notions is concerned they might be.

There is no mistaking the Mosaical as far as the social customs present themselves; but I was astonished one evening, during the Russian scare, when I was on the Afghan frontier, to see the very similitude of the old law punishment of stoning to death put from all directions toward the outskirts of the village of Puckta, picking up pieces of stone by the way and piling them in little heaps by their feet. I thought at the time they were going to have a pitched battle, with stones as missiles. But shortly a man came running forward, followed by a spitting, hooting mob, shouting: "Sag! Sag!" (dog! dog!). The unfortunate runaway evidently knew his fate, for his long, earnest appeal to Heaven as he stopped short and threw his arms up was but the preliminary to his fearful fate—his final appeal for mercy on his soul, for from that howling mob he well knew he need expect none.

The man had scarcely time to finish his invocation, when from all directions a literal shower of stones fell on him. For a moment he swayed to and fro under the onslaught. Soon the terrible shower had battered him into a jellied, blood-bespattered mass, his very clothes showing great rents through which the blood found vent and spurted freely. He wavered for a moment with his chir bobbing his chest, and then, after doubling up at the knees and middle, fell in a heap, dead.

Still the howling mob continued their terrible fusillade of stones until around the already lifeless body a cairn was formed, completely covering in the corpse. And then the mob clapped their hands, crowed, and went their way. "That dog is done for," said they. Done for! Yes, it was a terrible doing; for there under the heap of stones the man's nerves and muscles still vibrated in their post-death struggle, causing the stone heap to rise and fall as if in labor with a thing of life; rose and fell in their horrible parturition for a few moments until the twitching of nerve and muscle ceased, and all was still. "Consummatum est." The murderer of Afghanistan has breathed his last and his jacet is written around the tombstone in those blood marks that bespatter the ground about the Emperor's Star. When Bonaparte gave over his splendid dream of a grand Asiatic empire, audaciously declared all his own pur poses accomplished and the designs of his enemy entirely frustrated, and when, with his army, after its terrible march, he entered Cairo in all the mag nificence of an eastern conqueror, a de seendant of Mahomet presented to him a fine horse with a saddle adorned with precious gems, and a young slave, who held the bridle. This slave was Rustan, the Louisville Courier-Journal, the gular confidence that brought them to when Napoleon left the remnant of the grand army to its still uncertain fate and hastened to Paris to save his repuutation and his crown Rustan was one his race, his own origin and his strange experience, blended with confidential intercourse with so extraordinary a character as Napoleon, made Rustan a strange and mysterious personage to even his most intelligent contemporaries. In the modern play he is made to appear as a kind of gypsy fortune and the stars, and as Napoleon affected the same belief it was doubtless very agreeable to the Emperor to have about him one who sincerely ac-cepted this belief and who religiously believed all his master's fanreigiously believed all his master's fan-ciful atterances. Napoleon claimed that nature, stepped aside from its course for the purpose of his creation. He was accustomed to hear this idea reflected in the flattery of those who surrounded him, but he probably knew very well that the only man in Fance. very well that the only man in France who unqualifiedly believed all that he claimed was this wild mameluke. The modern play attributes the devotion of Rustan to gratitude to Napoleon, and that instead of keeping him as a bridle-holder the great soldier brought him, as he might a faithful dog, to be his bedroom guardian.

NAPOLEON'S DEVOTED SLAVE. A Faithful Mameluke Who Believed in

A Divided Town. The town of Texarkana is on the line between Texas and Arkansas, with a street-car track dividing the two. This was thought to be very funny at first, but now it has to have two sets of city officers, has lost the county seat and criminals are transported to the county seat and criminals are to the county seat and criminals. criminals escape from one state to another by going six feet. The man who staked out the town is dead, how-ever, and nothing can be done.

SIMULATED VIRTUE.

The Value of Hypocrisy as a Social When atrabilarious Hamlet, in his choleric interview with his mother in the cabinet, imprudently advised her "Assume a virtue if you have it or not,"

he unwittingly laid down a general rule of high value to individuals and the community, says John McElroy in the Popular Science Monthly.

Simulation of virtue, though far inferior to the real article, is still the next best thing to it, just as whitewash, though much inferior to marble, is yet greatly superior to dirty nakedness.

It is very desirable that all men and all women should stand together on the very highest plane of goodness; but the largest portion of them do notprobably never will. It is unreasonable to expect that the mass of humanity will be steadily aligned on the most ad vanced standards of morality, especially when those standards are pushed forward as rapidly as they have been in the more recent centuries. Ethics is a constantly developing science. What was a high grade of morality in the eighteenth century would be a very ordinary one to-day; just as the man who, in our colonial times, would have been regarded as neat and cleanly in his person, would seem a good deal of a sloven to-day. Then, as now, men and women would assume to be much cleaner, morally and physically, than they really were, and by sheer force of persistence and habit became really cleaner than they at first pretended to be. Persons with the bump of approbativeness highly developed constantly forge to the front on lines which they think will win them the esteem of their fellows, and the latter follow with unequa stens, first showing outward respect and conformity to better ideas and practices, and then making them more or less of realities in their lives.

A Handy Carriage A brougham built by an English firm is a model of conveniences. It is fitted with electric light sufficient for reading or writing. Opposite the seat is an ivory plate on which are several buttons properly lettered: "Left," "Right," "Stop," "Go On," "Home," and so on. On the dashboard in the coachman's view is a case lettered to correspond, so that when a knob is pressed he understands at once what is expected of him. One button brings out the word "Speak," in which case he will put the speaking tube in position and receive
